A Short History of Poland. "Heart of Europe" was written from start to finish in 1982-2 during a nine-month fellowship at the Japanese National Slavic Research Center at the University of Hokkaido. Since the Center Library had few Polish books other than basic reference works, it was largely composed straight from my head and with the help of notes and photocopied articles supplied from afar by colleagues.

However, Heart of Europe is written in a way which assumes you have read, and absorbed, both volumes of Davies' God's Playground (what I'm told is the definitive history of Poland). Davies will 'explain' (what seems like an important event) with two or three sentences in a tone which assumes you know know all about it already.
