Caravaggio: A Life Sacred and Profane The Sacred And Profane Love

Sacred and Profane Love (Italian: Amor Sacro e Amor Profano) is an oil painting by Titian, probably painted in 1514, early in his career. The painting is presumed to have been commissioned by Niccolò Aurelio, a secretary to the Venetian Council of Ten, whose coat of arms appears on the sarcophagus or fountain, to celebrate his marriage to a young widow, Laura Bagarotto.

November 29, 2012. Titian's Sacred and Profane Love is the gem of Rome's Borghese gallery... and one of the most famous paintings of Renaissance Italy. It's so beloved, in fact, that in 1899, the Rothschild family offered to pay the Borghese Gallery 4 million lira for the piece—even though the gallery's entire collection, and the grounds, were valued at only 3.6 million lira!

Titian painted Sacred and Profane Love between 1513 and 1514. In this painting, an oil on canvas, two women, or perhaps two versions of the same woman, sit on opposite ends of what looks like a marble trough. The woman on the left is almost nude, save for a strip of pure white cloth around her hips and a dramatically breeze-blown red stole.

A deed of violence finally solves many problems. This is a story of different loves; and of how a man may need two women in such a way that he can be happy with neither. Sacred and profane love are related opposites; the one enjoyed renders the other necessary, so that the ever unsatisfied heart swings constantly to and fro.

The Sacred And Profane Love Machine

Sacred and profane love. A man with 2 families - his "sacred", or legitimate family comprised of his wife and son David, and his "profane" comprised of his mistress and son Luca. These families slowly start to unravel and take the participants down with them. Exploration of the meaning of love and neverending quest for the heart's satisfaction.

The Sacred and Profane Love Machine by Iris Murdoch

Titian, Giorgione, Tintoretto & Iris Murdoch. The title comes from Titian's Sacred and Profane Love (above left in Rome's Borghese gallery), a painting which is notoriously ambiguous about which of the clothed or naked women depicts which type of love. In the novel Murdoch also repeatedly unsettles the reader as to whether Harriet and Blaise Gavander's 19 year marriage, or Blaise's nine year clandestine affair with Emily, is the sacred relationship.

The sacred–profane dichotomy is a concept posited by the French sociologist Émile Durkheim, who considered it to be the central characteristic of religion: "religion is a unified system of beliefs and practices relative to sacred things, that is to say, things set apart and forbidden." In Durkheim's theory, the sacred represents the interests of the group, especially unity, which were embodied in sacred group symbols, or totems.

The contemporary Sacred and Profane Love is likewise set in a landscape of extraordinary beauty, but here the allegory is less easily understood. The most generally accepted interpretation holds that the two women are the twin Venuses, according to Neoplatonic theory and symbolism. The terrestrial Venus, on...

The intention of this post was to connect the child at the Fountain/Sarcophagus of the Sacred and Profane Love to the child with the 'wand' supposedly 'tapping apples' (J. Anderson. Giorgione - the Painter of 'Poetic Brevity'. New York : Flammarion, c.1997) that was painted on the walls of the German trade headquarters in Venice by Giorgione.
