There are a whole bunch of beautiful poses and postures in Thai Massage, many of them derived from both (Indian) Yoga and Reusi Datton (Traditional Thai Yoga). In Yoga, these positions, the poses, are called Asanas. With Thai Massage, probably even more than in Yoga, most of these poses can be done in a myriad of ways — and that's I think one of the many powerful features of Thai Massage. As sometimes said, Thai Massage is "Yoga for Lazy People." It means that the practitioner does ...

Traditional Thai Yoga or Reusi Dat Ton is an ancient form of Thai Bodywork, and part of Traditional Thai Medicine. The work consists of self-massage, breathing exercises, and a broad variety of poses and sequences which are performed in standing, sitting, or lying positions. The theoretical foundation of Reusi Datton, like Thai Massage, is based on the concept of the Thai Sip Sen (energy channels or lines) that distribute vital energy through the body.
